Early Head Start Rising Summer Learning Series

Breastfeeding and Early Nutrition for Infants

Dr. Kimarie Bugg, president and CEO of Reaching Our Sisters Everywhere (ROSE), a national non-profit created in 2011 to address breastfeeding inequities in the African American community, talks about the importance of early nutrition and how Early Head Start programs can better support new parents.

Millions of infants and toddlers who qualify for Early Head Start cannot access it due to limited resources and a lack of awareness. They are counting on us to act. We hope you will join us to help Early Head Start rise in communities across the nation.

Resilience

The Biology of Stress & The Science of Hope

Wednesday, April 27, 2022
6:30 pm - 8:00 pm

Toxic stress can damage the brains and bodies of children, putting them at greater risk for disease, and other poor life outcomes. The Resilience film shows what communities are doing to protect children from the effects of toxic stress, using cutting-edge science and field-testing therapies.

The Solano County Office of Education invites early learning and care providers to this film screening and virtual panel discussion. Learn about steps we all can take to build resilience in our families and communities, so that our children have the skills to thrive, adapt and cope despite tough and stressful times.

Last week's trivia answer:

In Early Childhood Education vocabulary what's the meaning of "Emerging Competencies"?

If your answer is B You are Correct! Five key trends are shaping the evolution of these

Competency practices: the demand for more participative methods, the shift toward short-cycle techniques, the increased emphasis on emerging competencies, the growing importance of team and process competencies, and the transition to the organizational learning perspective.

"Free the child's potential, and you will transform him into the world".
